++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Very cold tonight and tomorrow.

This Evening and Tonight:
Daytime showers will gradually become confined to the far north of Scotland and far southeast of England. Later in the night a few showers feed into southwest England. Very cold and frosty with icy stretches and isolated freezing fog patches.

Thursday:
Another cold day, but most areas fine and dry. Still a few snow showers over northern Scotland thought. Cloud and rain, sleet and snow then reach Cornwall later. Turning windier.

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Wintry showers affecting the southwest and far northeast; otherwise very cold but mostly dry and bright on Friday. Rain and snow moving erratically east over the weekend.
